RE: 2003 Irrigation Season

Dear Water User:

Water supply and deliveries may be very tight this coming irrigation season given the continued drought conditions from the past few years and snow pack conditions that are currently below average. I would like to remind you to make sure that your headgates, controlling works and measuring devices are properly installed and in working order prior to diversion of water this year.

The water district will coordinate with IDWR on running the water right accounting model this year on a weekly basis so that we can keep track of natural flow and storage water use at each diversion, as well as general water right priority cuts. I plan to have weekly accounting runs and diversion data available on Friday of each week once regulation begins during the irrigation season. You may contact me directly for delivery or accounting updates at your diversion or you may review weekly accounting results at the following Internet address: www.idwr.state.id.us/water/districts/dist11/dist11.txt

If you have any questions, please call me at 208-852-1385.

Sincerely,

Pete Peterson, Watermaster
